

The Economic Contribution of Older Alaskans

December 2025

Spencer Perry

UAA Institute of Social and Economic Research
UNIVERSITY of ALASKA ANCHORAGE

The Economic Contribution of Older Alaskans

- A 2004 ISER report found that retirees aged 60+ contributed roughly $1.46 billion to the state economy.

2004 cash flow from retirees aged 60+

$1.46 billion

2001 tourist spending

$1.8 billion

2004 mineral production

$1.34 billion

2005 seafood harvest

$1.3 billion

$0.00 $1.00 $2.00 $3.00 $4.00 $5.00 $6.00 $7.00
Billions

The Economic Contribution of Older Alaskans

- Using an updated methodology, we estimate that number grew to roughly $6.7 billion in 2023.

2023 cash flow from retirees aged 60+

$6.7 billion

2023 tourist spending

$4.37 billion

2024 mineral production

$4.0 billion

2022-2023 average seafood harvest

$1.83 billion

$0.00 $1.00 $2.00 $3.00 $4.00 $5.00 $6.00 $7.00
Billions

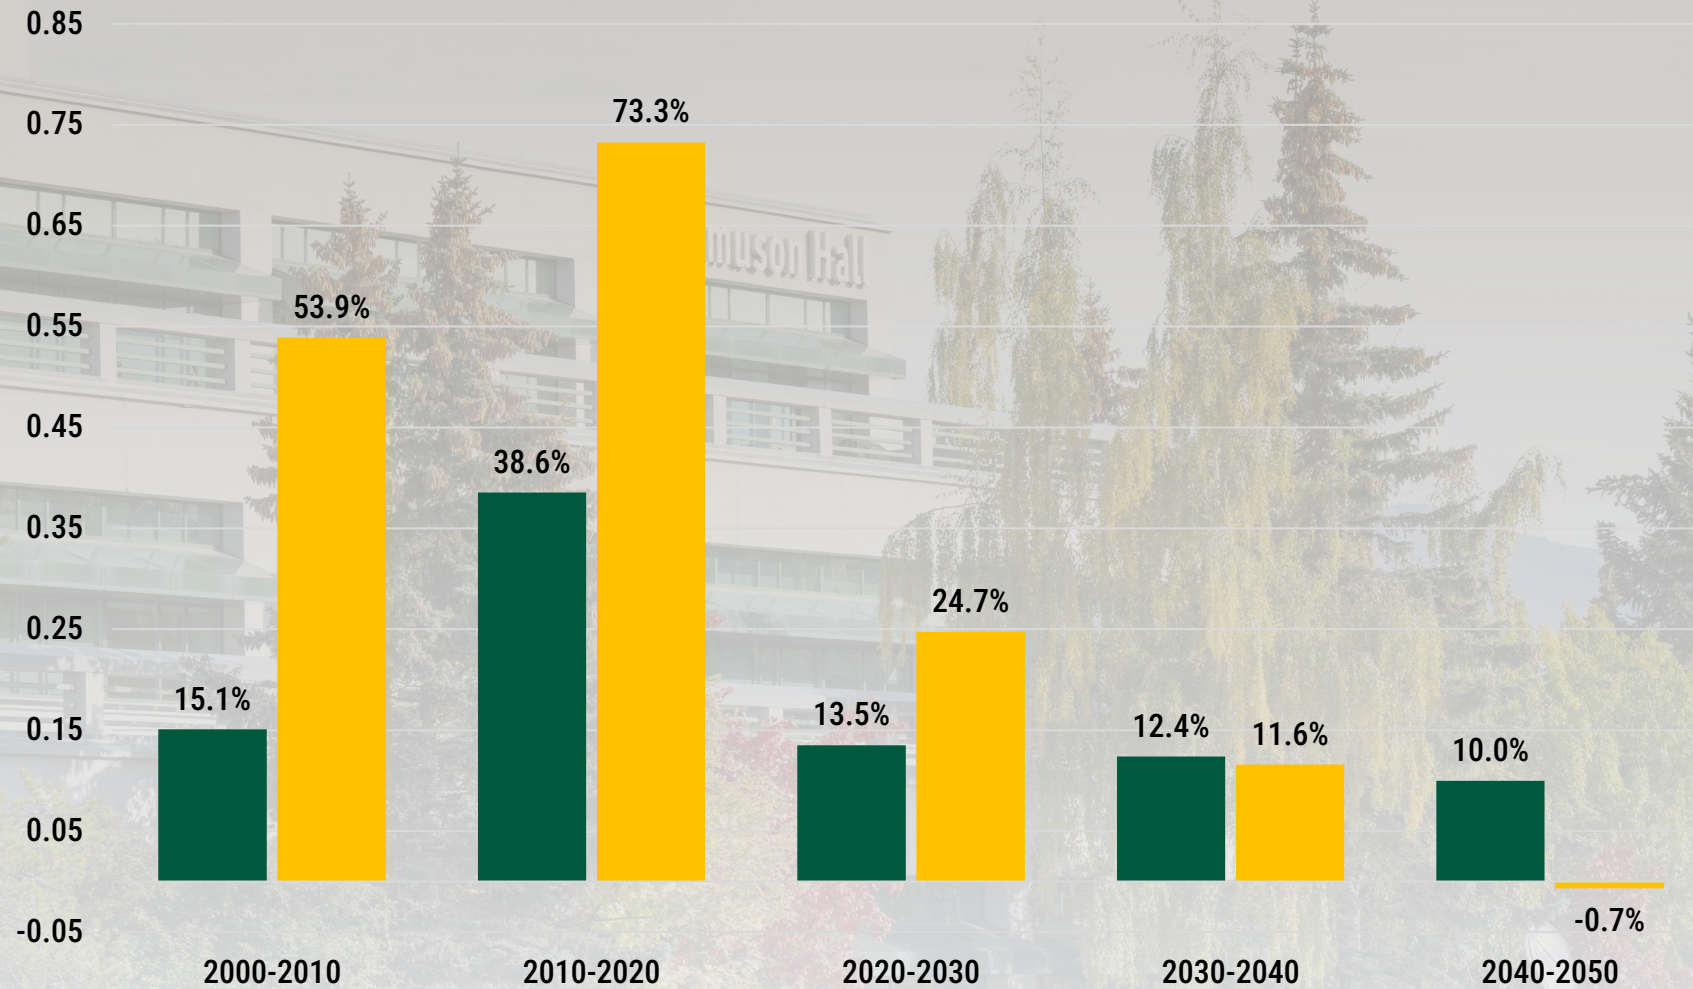

This Contribution Will Continue to Grow

Number of Alaskans 65 and Older

This Contribution Will Continue to Grow

Historical and Projected Growth, People 65 and Older, Alaska and U.S.

■ US ■ Alaska

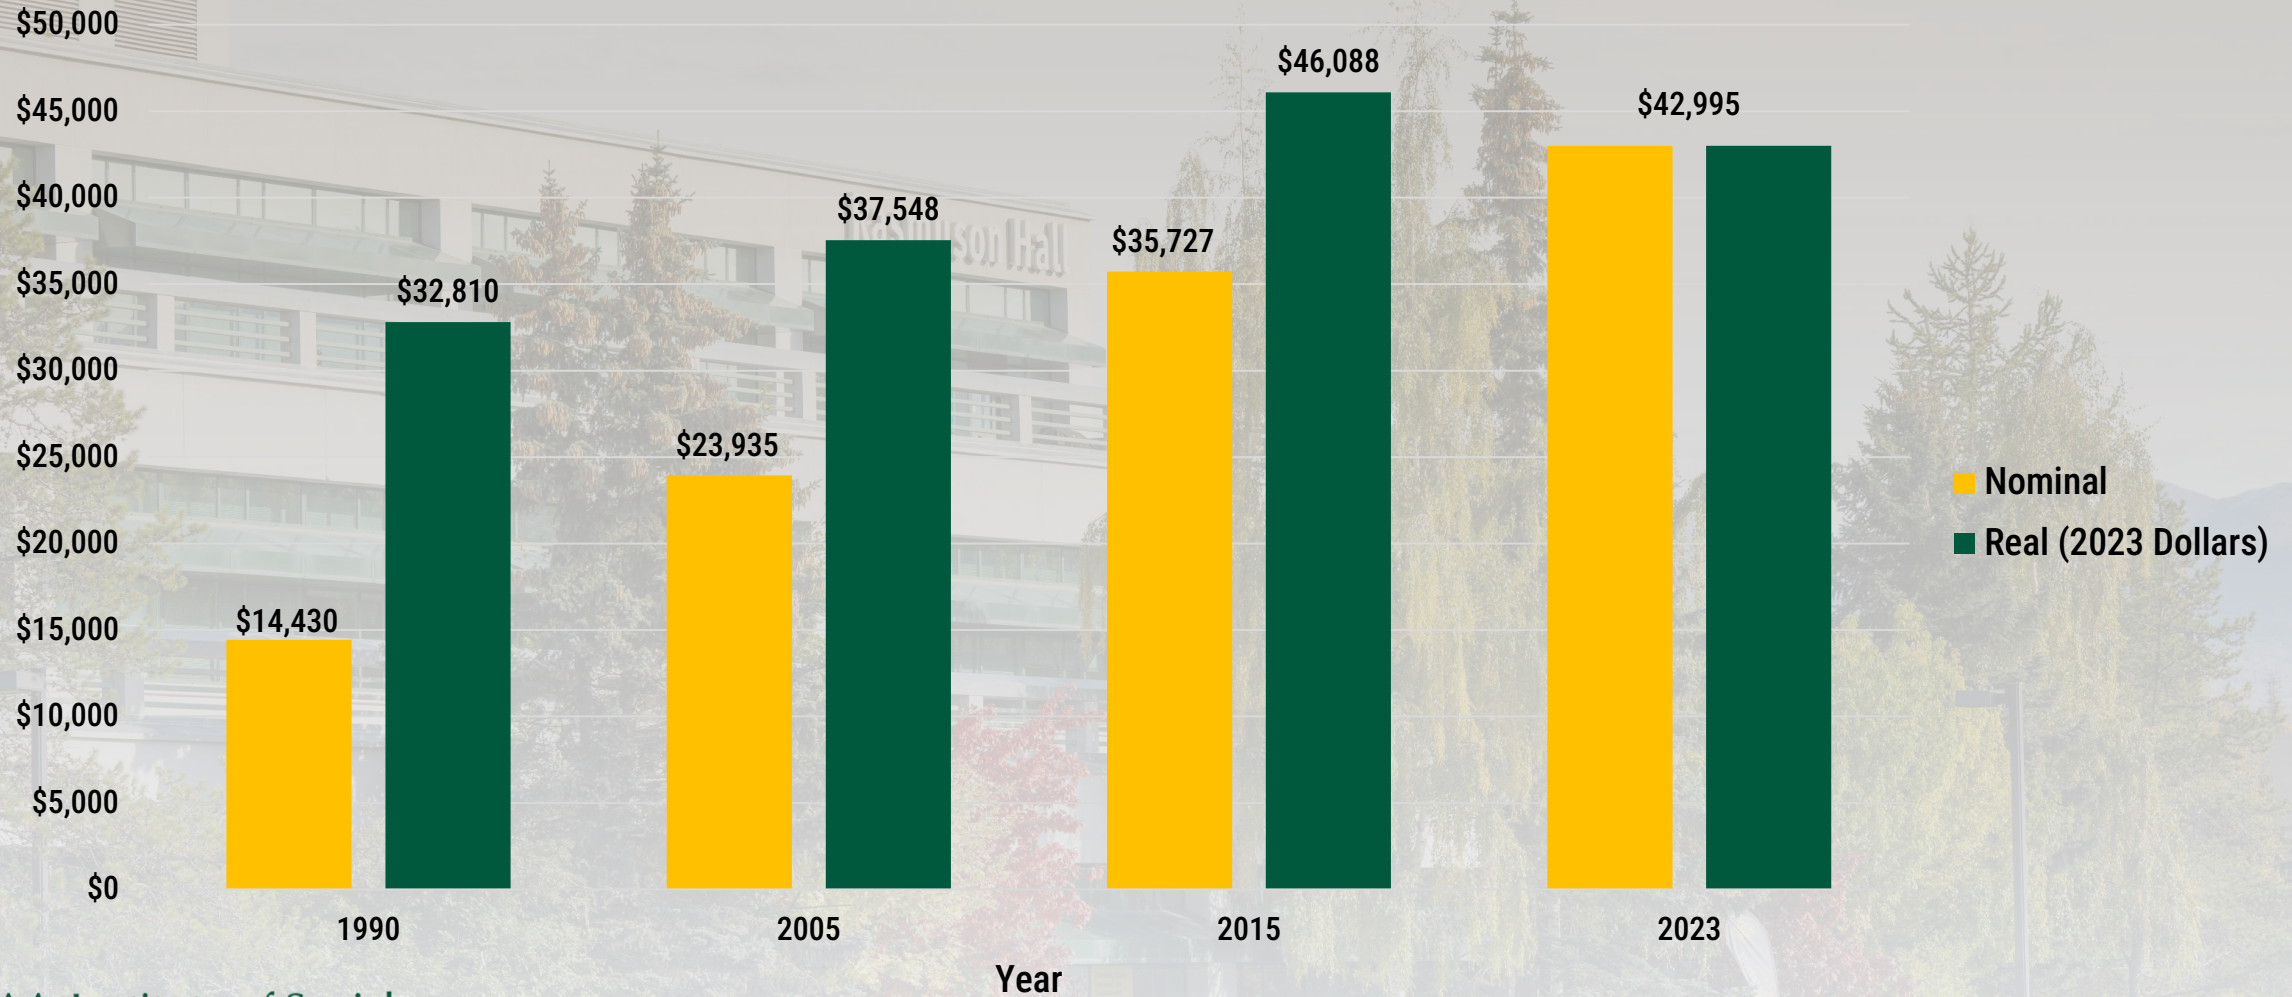

Source: U.S. Census Bureau and Alaska Department of Labor

UAA Institute of Social
and Economic Research
UNIVERSITY of ALASKA ANCHORAGE

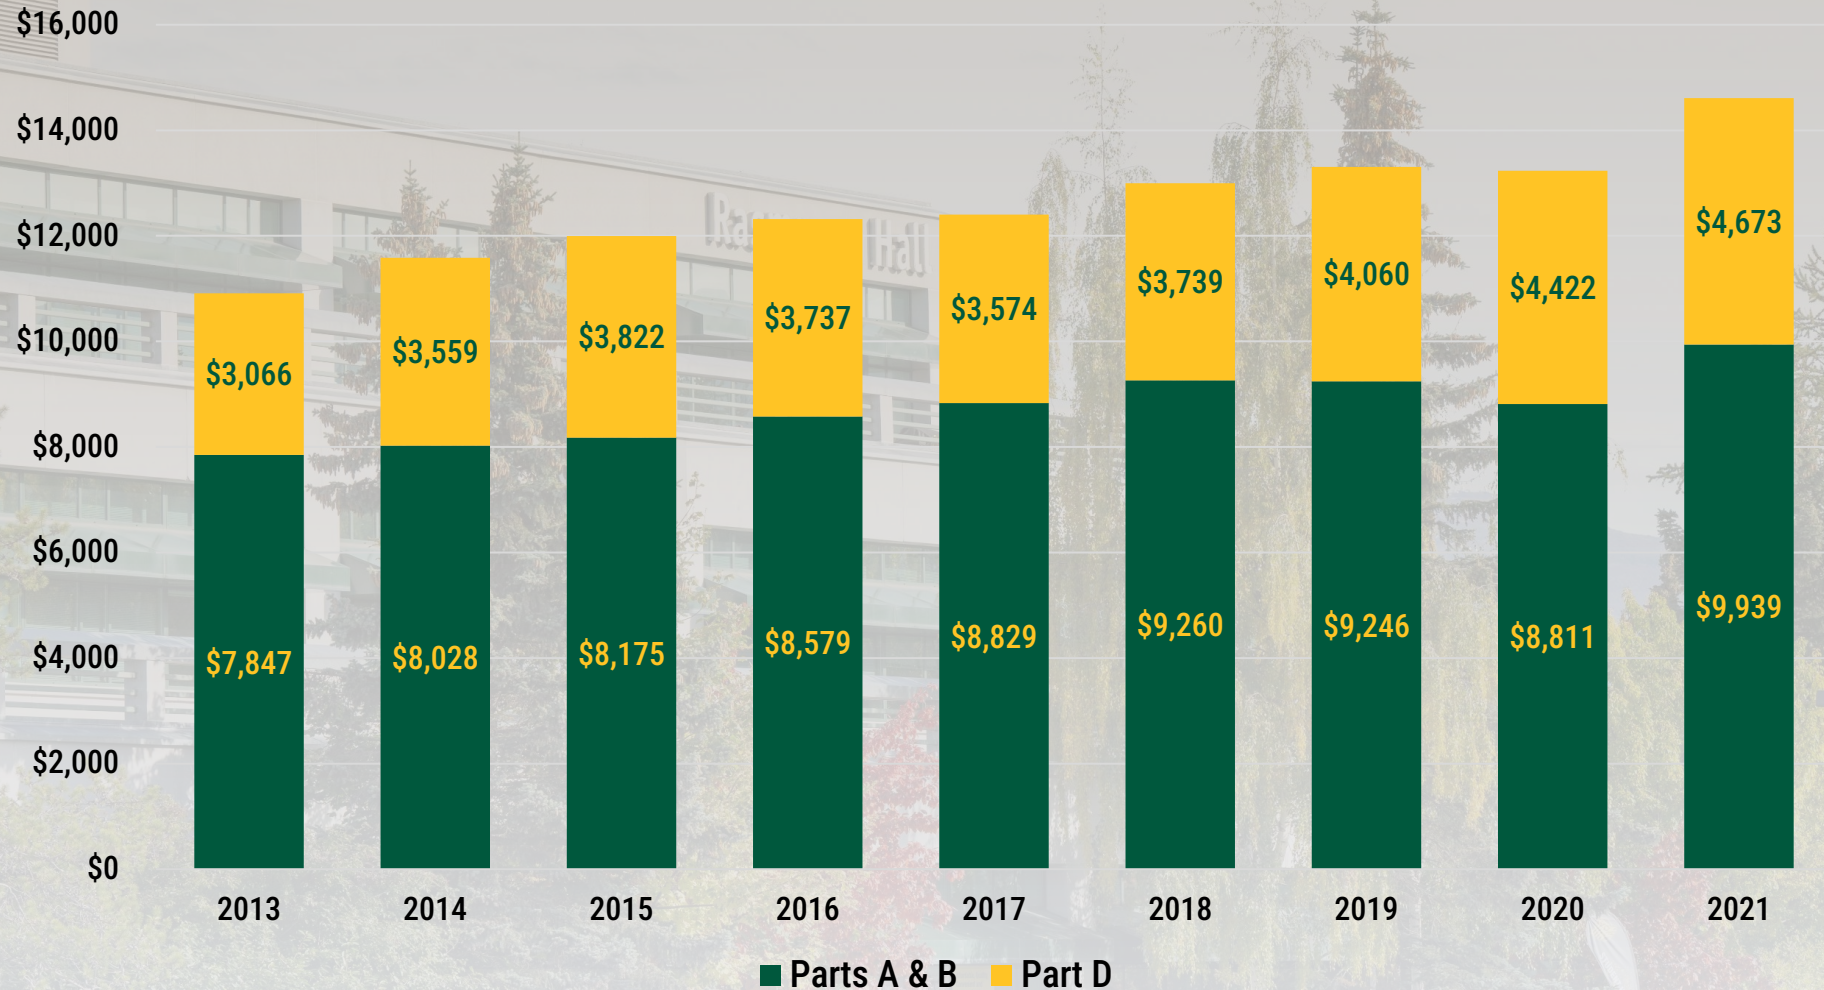

This Contribution Will Continue to Grow

Income of Retirees Aged 60+

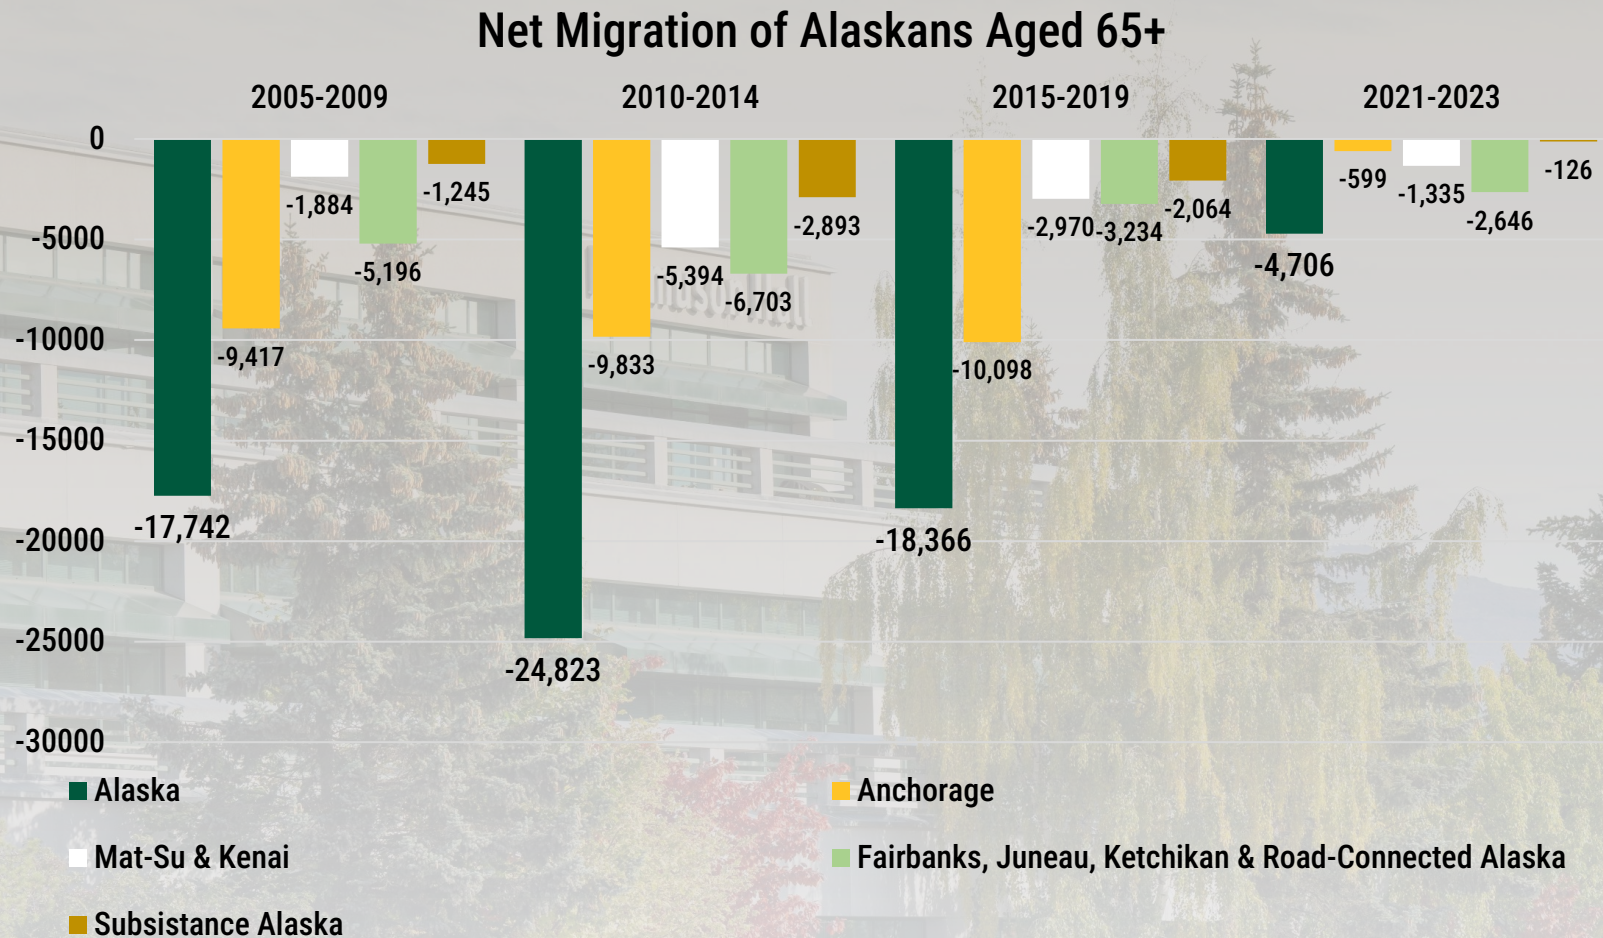

This Contribution Will Continue to Grow

Traditional Medicare Spending Per Enrollee

But an Aging Population Presents New Challenges

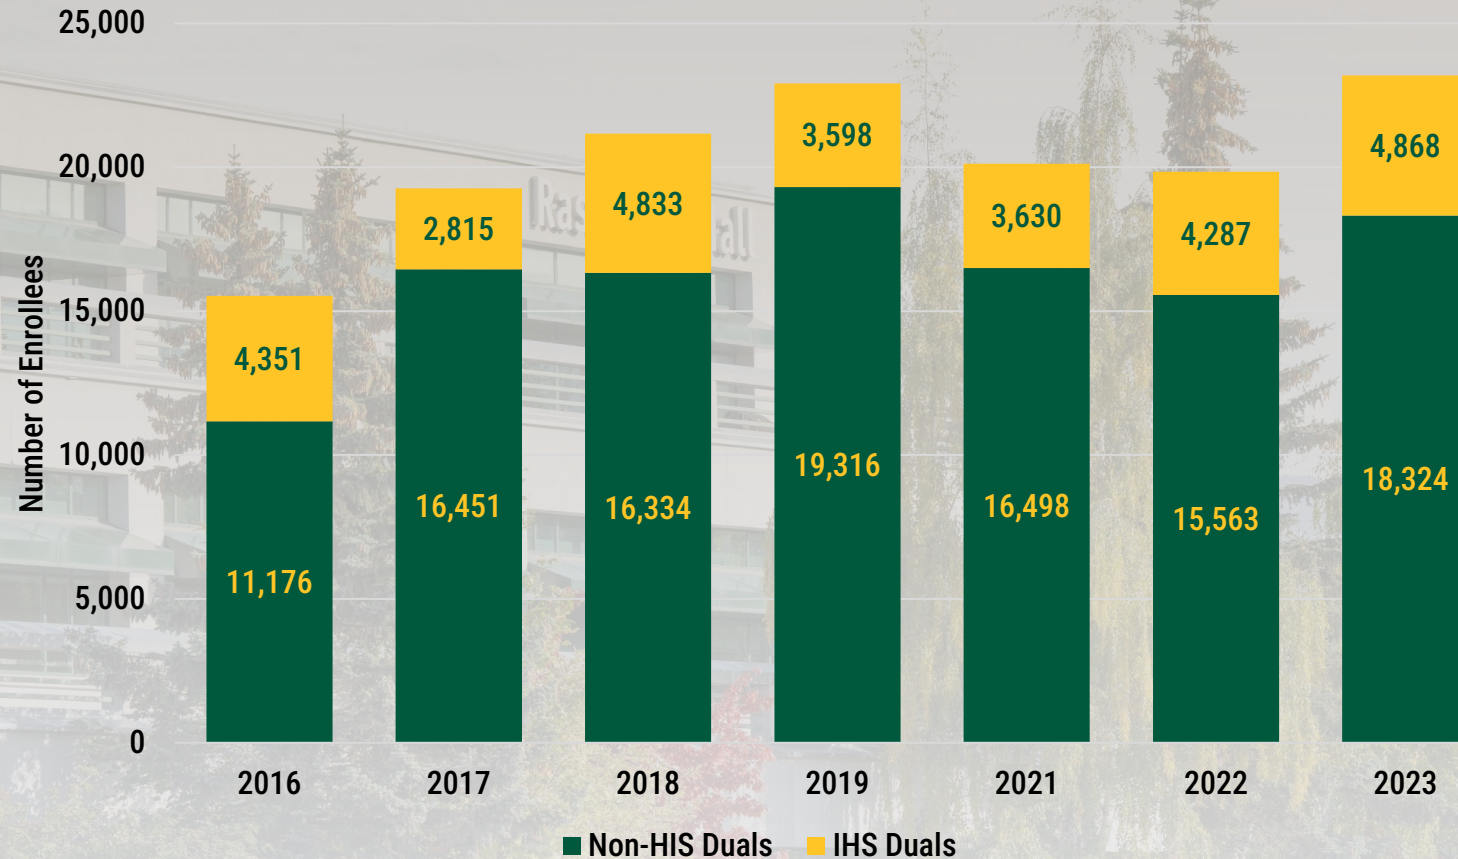

Source: U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey

But an Aging Population Presents New Challenges

Trends in Dual-Eligibility for Medicare and Medicaid

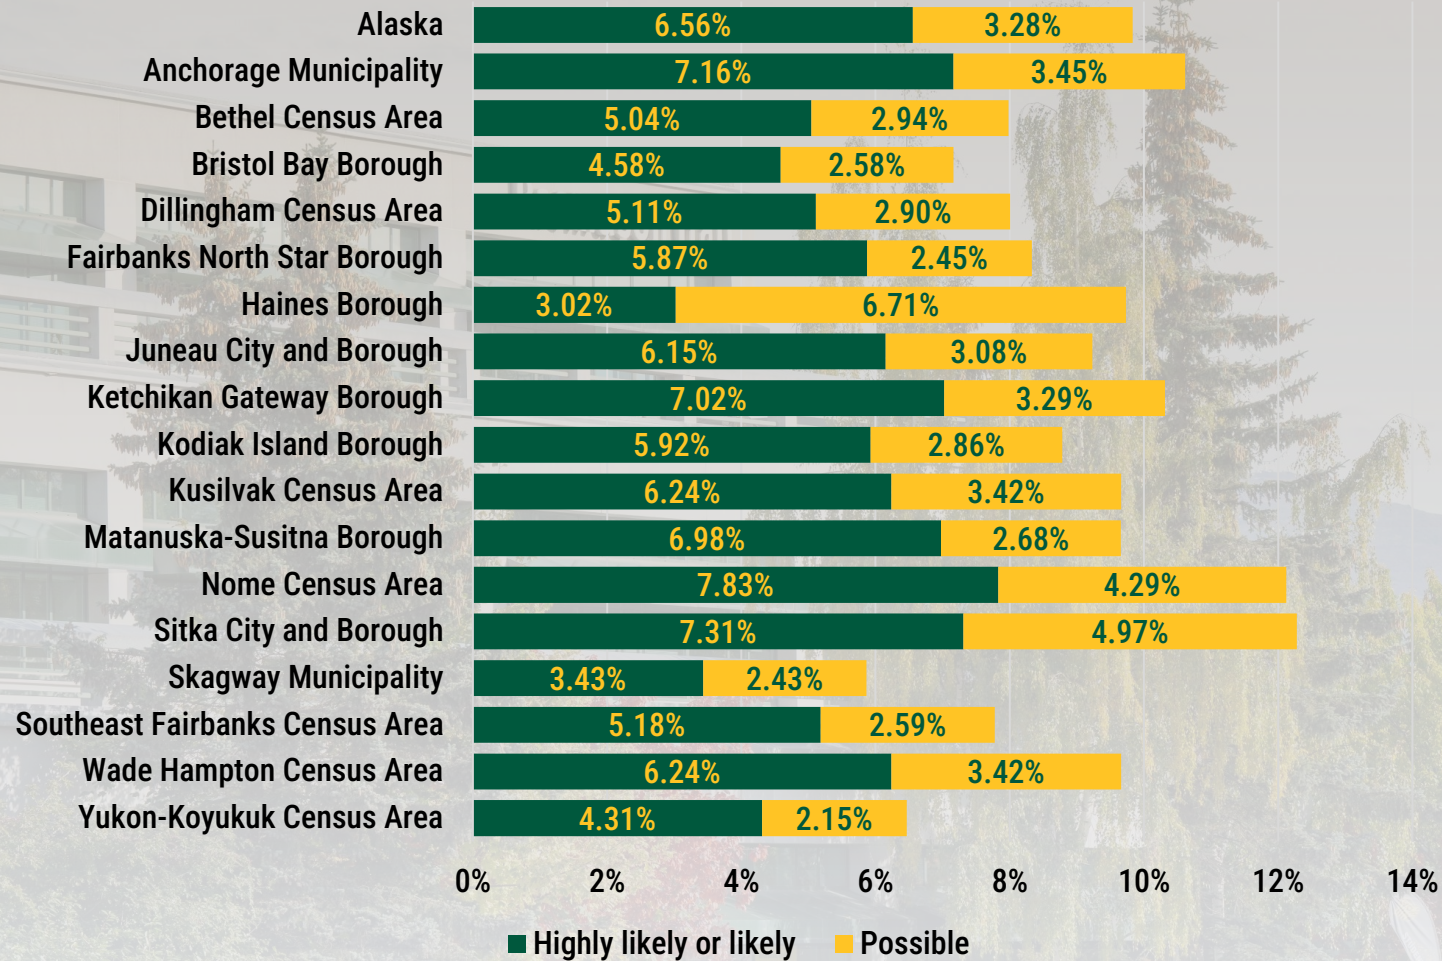

Source: U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey

But an Aging Population Presents New Challenges

Share of Medicare Beneficiaries with ADRD (2021)

Source: NORC at the University of Chicago Dementia Datahub

